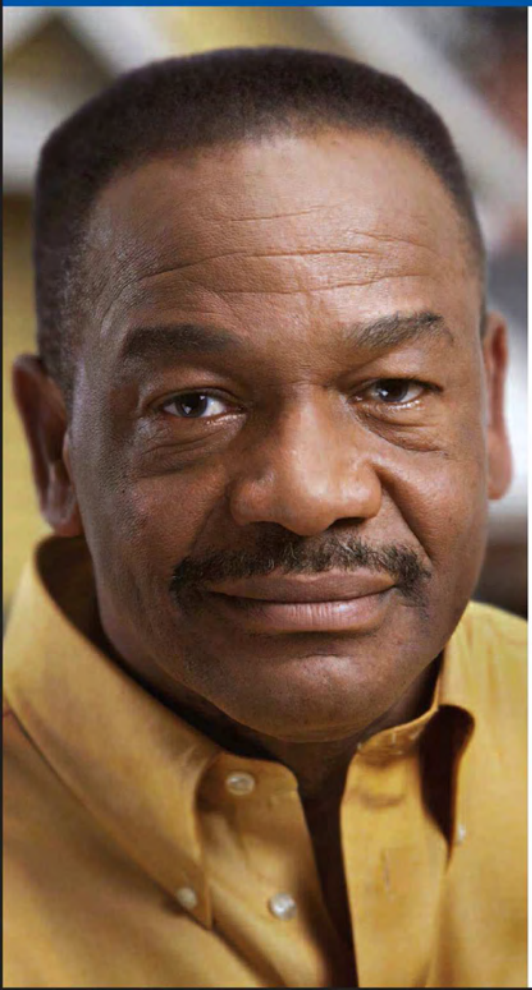
How you can get tested for COLON CANCER



A variety of tests

for colon cancer can find growths before they become cancer and identify cancer early, when you have the best chance of beating it with treatment. Most people should begin testing at age 50, although people with certain risk factors should be tested earlier or more often.

Talk to your doctor about getting tested. For more information, contact the American Cancer Society at 1.800.ACS.2345 or visit www.cancer.org.
